

2009 AWARDS OF EXCELLENCE

Special Recognition Awards

The following awards are given to individual broadcasters in radio and television who are nominated by their peers via written presentations. A letter should be submitted giving the name of the nominee, the award category, and a description of the exemplary work which the nominee has performed in the community. Judging of these awards will be conducted by the Broadcast Professionals of Colorado in conjunction with the CBA. These awards may or may not be given each year. There are no entry fees for these categories. Individuals may not win the same award in consecutive years.

The Broadcast Citizen Award

A separate award by market category, is awarded for both radio and television. This award is created to recognize individual contribution to public service in his/her community. Individuals may be selected from the entire station staff, on or off-air. While the individual's total public service record in the community will be a factor in the judging the emphasis is on service performed in conjunction with a station sponsored community event (s). Please note that individuals who have received this award in the past year are not eligible for the 2008 award and should not be nominated.

The Harry W. Hoth Public Service Award

Named after veteran Colorado Springs radio and television broadcaster and former CBA President Harry W. Hoth, on the occasion of his 50th year in broadcasting, this award is meant to honor sustained public service to the community, state and nation. It is expected nominees will come from the ranks of present or former Colorado radio or television broadcasters. Individuals may have served in an on-air or off-air role. Emphasis will be placed on service performed while in broadcasting in the State of Colorado. A long history of dedicated public service to organizations both in and out of broadcasting will be a major thrust. Please note that individuals who have received this award in the past year are not eligible for the 2008 award and should not be nominated.

The Rex Howell Broadcaster of the Year Award

Rex Howell was a pioneer Colorado broadcaster with service both on the front range and the western slope. He was a driving force behind and the cofounder of the Colorado Broadcasters Association in 1949. Rex was a dreamer and leader who followed his dreams with solid action and skill. The Rex Howell Broadcaster of the Year Award will come from the ranks of someone actively engaged in either radio or television broadcasting in Colorado at the time the award is given. It may be a person on or off the air. Emphasis will be on an individual who, through his/her leadership, skill and dedication is advancing the work of broadcasting in the community, state and nation.
